

Aled Davies - Biography

Aled is an experienced mediator first cutting his teeth as a mediator in South Africa in the late nineties during which time he was working in the diamond mining industry. He later raised private equity and started up his own diamond operation in Angola where his mediation skills were instrumental in building his business. He has a background in construction and surveying.

Aled now trains commercial mediators – leading the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators (CI Arb) Mediator Training Course and also speaks at international mediation conferences. He continues to develop his own skills and practice and specialises in working with multi party conflict. In addition Aled works with many FTSE100 clients helping them to resolve their disputes and conflicts through mediation.

His style is very relaxed and he helps create an informal atmosphere - encouraging parties to talk directly to each other. Aled has a real ability to help surface the uncomfortable issues and makes it easier for parties to talk about them in a productive and practical way. He strikes the right balance between supporting and challenging parties and can often inject a welcome dose of energy to keep everyone focused on their outcomes.

Aled typically mediates in the following areas;

- Commercial
- Construction
- Employment
- Property
- Insurance
- Partnership

Aled is a passionate supporter of Welsh rugby and early in his rugby career he made appearances for the Leicester Tigers and Cardiff RFC before going on to play in South Africa. He has now settled in London where he lives with his family and two young children.

Testimonials

“His calming presence really helped to ease my nerves and the tension”

“He seemed to ask the right questions at the right time in the right way”

“Aled created the forum where we could talk about the tough issues”

“He’s got a real talent for this”