

As part of the 2009 MATA winter programme, the following are open to both practicing commercial mediators and non mediator guests.

THE VENUE

Chartered Institute of Arbitrators (CIArb),
12 Bloomsbury Square, London

THE TONY CURTIS DEBATE

“CAN POLITICS, RELIGION AND MEDIATION REALLY MIX?”

2nd December 2009
16.30 - 18.30

(followed by drinks and nibbles)

Speakers include Andrew Acland: one of the founders of mediation in the UK, former aide to Terry Waite and now environmental mediator; Kenneth Cloke: US mediator, arbitrator and author on conflict; Nomi Bar-Yaacov: Israeli peace negotiator. Two further key speakers to be announced will include a UK church leader who supports mediation and a UK politician.

THE COST: £50 + VAT per delegate (with a guest included for free).

TONY CURTIS : friend, colleague, mediator, trainer, solicitor, pilot, gliding instructor, oboe player, traveller, Spanish speaker - a man of many talents, died on 11 April 2003 after losing a battle with cancer.

Tony trained with me on the CEDR course in 1991 and was accredited in 1992. He was a natural and soon became established as a key CEDR panel mediator. He joined the CEDR training faculty in 1993 and was a consultant to the training team following his retirement as managing partner of Machins Solicitors in 1997.

They are the facts, but they do not do justice to the man - a man whose sense of humour, humility, courtesy, and demonstrable concern for others enriched so many lives. Tony was a gentle man, loved and respected, and now missed by all.

KENNETH CLOKE WORKSHOP

“CONFLICT REVOLUTION”

3rd December 2009
09.00 - 17.30

This workshop is based upon Ken's book on mediating evil, war, injustice and terrorism. Director of the Center for Dispute Resolution, Ken is mediator, arbitrator, facilitator, lawyer and consultant. He coaches in effective and collaborative communication, negotiation and relationship building. Ken has written several books on mediation, including, 'Mediating Dangerously, the Frontiers of Conflict Resolution'.

THE COST: £375 + VAT per delegate

SPECIAL OFFER:

Book on the Kenneth Cloke workshop and come to the Debate for free.

Members of the AMT Club (i.e those who have been on the Advanced Course) are entitled to a 20% discount.

Both events have CPD points for the Law Society and Bar Council (Debate 2, Workshop 8)
