

San Telmo is one of the oldest districts in Buenos Aires; it was also the wealthiest until the 1870s when many residents started relocating to more spacious areas. The ancient cobbled streets of San Telmo then began to come into their own; the city's oldest square, the Plaza Dorrego, became home to dancers and musicians, the old colonial buildings transformed into bars and clubs, and as the social climbers moved out, the Tango moved in.

World-renowned South American artist Fabian Perez is in a unique position to convey the atmosphere of this seductive and glamorous world, having spent his childhood amongst some of its more striking characters. This formidable collection of hand-embellished Canvas Editions represents Fabian's figurative gift at its most impressive; his controlled yet passionate compositional style allows these beautifully described, authentic figures to live and breathe against the distinctive backdrop of a sultry San Telmo night.
